STUDY OF THE ASSESSMENT

MADE IN COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE.

Interesting Schedules of Town and County Properties in the County.

1921 will be the triennial assessment of the real estate in all the districts, townships and boroughs. A study of the last assessment has been made in the County Commissioners' Office and a number of interesting facts and figures have been brought to light, showing the many inequalities in assessing of real estate for taxation purposes. Among the odd facts are that in the boroughs of the county there are 345 properties assessed at more than $2000 and Gettysburg has 203 of these properties and the other boroughs 142.

The study of real estate assessment in Adams county made in the County Commissioners' Office reveals the following facts:

There are 2160 acres of unimproved lots assessed in the 11 boroughs of Adams county at an average of $70 per lot or acre.

1146 properties assessed between $500 and $1000 at an average of $726.

349 lots improved with homes assessed less than $500 each at an average of $330.

1010 properties assessed between $1000 and $2000 at an average of $1345.

297 properties assessed between $2000 and $5000 at an average of $3030.

It is found that in all the boroughs of Adams county are only 345 properties assessed more than $2000 distributed as follows:

3 in Abbottstown, 5 in Arendtsville, 2 in Bendersville, 8 in Biglerville, 23 in East Berlin, 6 in Fairfield, 85 in Gettysburg 1st ward, 97 in Gettysburg 2nd ward, 21 in Gettysburg 3rd ward, 23 in Littlestown, 1 in McSherrytown 1st ward, 8 in McSherrytown 2nd ward, 50 in New Oxford, 13 in York Springs.

The study shows that the tendency has been to assess almost one-half the properties in the boroughs between $500 and $1000.

In the townships the following facts present themselves:

There are 2230 tracts or lots containing less than 10 acres assessed at an average of $285 per property.

1187 farms between 10 to 40 acres assessed at an average of $43 per acre.

1268 farms between 40 and 100 acres assessed at an average of $40 per acre.

882 farms of more than 100 acres assessed at an average of $38 per acre.

In the townships the assessment of the properties of less than 10 acres range from an average assessment of $760 in Conowingo to 229 in Freedom.

The 10 to 40 acre farms range from an average of $77.50 per acre in Hamilton to $24 per acre in Freedom.

The farms containing from 40 to 100 acres range from an average assessment per acre of $73 in Conowingo to $24 in Freedom.

The farms of more than 100 acres range from an average of $81 per acre in Conowingo to $22 per acre in Tyrone.

Space will not permit us to give the average assessment of the various classes in every township. We have only given the highest and lowest where we name the township.

3000 PENNSYLVANIA BOYS

Will Go to the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Camp Meade.

From now on the military authorities at Camp Meade, Maryland, in charge of the 3rd Corps Area of the nine Citizens' Military Training Camps into which the country has been divided, will be very busy picking out the quota for Pennsylvania from the 3000 and more young men who have made application to have a vacation plus military training this year, at the expense of Uncle Sam. The Headquarters for the Pennsylvania Committee in charge of the recruiting at 1300 Commercial Trust Building, Philadelphia, is co-operating with the Commanders at Camp Meade and have rallied a very fine group of young men from 16 to 35 who will take the training which begins on August 1 and lasts for one month. With the school year over and the vacation season beginning, the entire State have completed their preliminary roster which indicates that Pennsylvania will go over the top so far as numbers of those who are willing to take advantage of this unusual opportunity.

This fine result has been brought about by reason of the fact that the camp has had the support of the educational institutions of the State, and leading churches of all denominations, the newspapers and all the state departments in any way concerned with promoting the health and welfare of the youth of the State. The Department of Health is placing its district doctors at the command of the War Department for any uses incidental to the final admission of those who will be selected from among the applicants already listed and the Pennsylvania Railroad has also placed its medical service at the command of the United States authorities. Moreover, after the young men are in camp one of the great features of the camp will be the recreational and athletic training plus medical training, including up-to-date dentistry which will return each successful applicant to his home and to his work in better physical condition than he has been for years.

In order to make the month of training a real school of citizenship so that as the slogan runs "the training will make the man fit to protect his and the rights of the country," an especial effort has been made to give a reasonable amount of military training along with such educational and social facilities as will make each military vacationists for this year a rooter for the military camps in the future.

In order to suit the rigors of camp life to the various classes, who will be recruited, the youngest men who go in for training, those of 16 and 17, will be kept together in the same organizations and this system will be followed for all successful applicants up to the age of 35. In addition special care will be taken with regard to fit of equipment, clothing, shoes; the reduced size pack will be used on marches; the olive-drab shirts will be padded for firing; practice marches will be short and young men will not be required to perform duties beyond their physical capacity. Frequent rests will be provided for in all periods of instruction and on the march, the drills varied so as to maintain interest, and a large proportion of time will be devoted to athletic sports.

Effort also will be made to show and demonstrate to these young men the equipment and functions of the various branches and arms of the United States army. It is expected to have a troop of cavalry, signal corps detachment and representatives of the Air Service. In addition moving picture films of Field Artillery and Coast Artillery will be shown; also ceremonies by a regiment of Infantry which is stationed at the post. Due to the moral responsibility to the families of the students, the Corps Area Commander prohibits the taking of students for air-plane trips altogether and any swimming except under the closest supervision of expert swimmers. The most approved apparatus will be provided. Every effort will be made to provide most attractive entertainment in social functions, theatricals, athletics, moving pictures and scenic trips.

At Camp Meade in addition to the features that will be common to all the camps, the Pennsylvanians will have the benefit of learning something about the picturesque feature of military life, outside of aviation in the observation of the maneuvers of the Tank Corps since Camp Meade is the head of the Tank Corps training of the country. In fact, Camp Meade presents the most perfect round-up of all camp possibilities and those who are accepted from Pennsylvania for this area will have a vacation free of all charge for a month that will be worth while.

Will Open New Store.

Curtis H. Sheads has rented from Mrs. Braunreuter the vacant rooms on the first floor of the Battlefield Hotel, where a store will be conducted under his management. The rooms are being renovated and furnished, the larger to be used for staple groceries and canned goods, while the smaller room will be used as a tea room where refreshments will be sold.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY MEETS

Over $3600 Raised, Roadway Built, and Grounds Improved—Big Donation of Supplies.

The second annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Annie M. Warner Hospital was held in the College Church on Tuesday evening, with about twenty-five present. Mrs. C. B. Stover, President of the Auxiliary, presided. Reports were heard from treasurer, secretary, and chairman of the sewing, food, and branch organization committees.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. C. B. Stover; First Vice President, Mrs. Donald P. McPherson; Second Vice President, Mrs. H. T. McClean, Mrs. Lewars, and Mrs. Harry Cunningham.

Dr. J. A. Singmaster gave an account of the work of the hospital, which was most gratifying, complimenting the auxiliary for its work and asking that interest be continued. He made the statement that while the financial condition of the hospital was very satisfactory, the organization still carries a debt of $11,000; and the endowment fund is yet small, and begged for the continued and even increased interest of the women of the county.

The following are the reports of the various committees:

Report of Mrs. Lewars, Chairman of Committee on Branch Organizations.

Immediately after the organization of the auxiliary of the Annie M. Warner Hospital the formation of branch organizations was begun. In all eleven were formed, officers were elected, committees appointed, and work was begun at once. Each branch adopted the constitution suggested by the central auxiliary and promised to secure as many members as possible, to give an annual entertainment of some sort for the raising of funds and to contribute food. The food contribution which was very large will be reported in detail by the chairman of the food committee.

In listening to the report of the branch work it should be borne in mind that for some of our branches the year is not yet up. Fairfield, for instance, will give its festival on August 6. The members of the many churches have been instrumental in raising the funds pledged by schools, churches and other organizations for the Endowment Fund and the Emergency Fund.

Following is the amount of the contributions reported by the secretary of the various branches to the chairman of your committee:

LINCOLN WAY DEVELOPMENTS.

Elaborate Entrance Way into the City of Philadelphia.

The Bureau of Highways of the Department of Public Works of Philadelphia, will complete this season a four-mile section of the Lincoln Highway known locally as "Bensalem Branch of the Roosevelt Boulevard." The new construction will extend the Boulevard to the county line, crossing Poquessing Creek and extending into Route 281 of the state highway department, a part of the Lincoln Highway.

Roosevelt Boulevard, a section of the Lincoln Highway, from the north end of Rhawn street to Broad street, has a center driveway of sixty feet and two thirty-four-foot side drives. The center drive is used by automobiles only and the side drives by both trucks and pleasure cars. The location of the new construction has two twenty-six-foot driveways with a central park and is completed to Welsh Road. It is proposed to extend this avenue in nearly a straight line to the county line, part of which will be over the Service Test Road built in 1913. The average daily traffic is about 900 trucks and 3,100 automobiles.

An ornamental concrete, stone-faced, arch bridge of forty feet span and eighty feet wide, will be built over Poquessing Creek, at the county line between Philadelphia and Bucks counties. In order to eliminate the dangerous right hand turn at the foot of a grade, the location of a new bridge has been moved westward about 1000 feet to the present county bridge and the state department of highways has awarded a contract to build a 20-foot concrete roadway to connect with the new bridge.

The Commissioners of Bucks county, appreciating the worth of the Lincoln Highway, have co-operated in the movement to effect this improvement by furnishing the right-of-way for the road to be built by the State and by a substantial contribution towards the cost of the new bridge.

For the new construction it is intended to secure a 150-foot right-of-way, on which ultimately will be built two 34-foot roadways, with a grass plot in the center and wide sidewalks on each side.

At the present time $800,000 is available for the construction in question, but with this, the most elaborate plan of Lincoln Highway construction in any municipality along the length of the great thoroughfare, such a sum is not sufficient to permit of the completion of all this work for the entire length at this time. Consequently it is proposed to build one of the roadways for the entire length rather than complete the boulevard construction for only half this distance. However, the road will be graded and the culverts built the entire width of the right-of-way.

It is of particular interest and significance to note that the plan of construction of the Department of Public Works of Philadelphia, is very closely in line with the specifications decided upon by the Technical Committee of the Lincoln Highway Association, in planning the Lincoln Highway Ideal Section.

Tourists upon the Lincoln Highway between Chicago and New York in the future will have the opportunity of inspecting the two highest types of municipal and rural highway construction in the world—the Philadelphia Section here described and the Ideal Section of the Lincoln state line.

Fourth Bridge to be Built.

When the County Commissioners prepared their budget of expenses for the year 1921 they included in their items of expenditures the building of three new bridges and levied the bridge tax in accordance with the estimates of cost of these three bridges. They hoped at that time that the bridge at the Poor House on the Harrisburg Road might hold up with minor repairs for another year and did not include the cost of a new bridge at that point in their budget.

The extraordinary truck traffic incident to the construction of the Harrisburg Road has been breaking down that bridge and caused the abutments to fall out.

The three bridges contemplated for 1921 were awarded at a price aggregating $6,000 to $8,000 less than the estimates on the same. In addition a saving that they now see on several items on the budget will enable them to build a new bridge at the Poor House and pay for it out of this year's revenue. These conditions in connection with the fact that it would be inconvenient to the traffic to postpone the building of this bridge until 1922, as the Harrisburg Road shall have been opened for traffic, induced the Commissioners at their meeting this week to decide to build a new bridge near Poor House across Rock Creek. There will be two 35 ft. spans. The bridge will be built of re-inforced concrete girder type. The application for a permit from the Water Supply Commission has been signed by the Commissioners. The engineer has been instructed to complete plans and specifications and the clerk and solicitor to prepare advertisement for proposals.

Swimming Prohibition.

Dr. C. G. Crist, medical director of the county, at the request of the Gettysburg Water Company, has prohibited swimming in Marsh Creek from pumping station to a point one mile north of Lincoln Highway. This prohibition covers Black Hole and Heretere's Dam. In view of several cases of typhoid fever in the town it was deemed that this prohibition was necessary as a precautionary measure. Talking about swimming, a swimming pool on the playground fed by the two or three springs on the grounds could be made the place needed in this town.

Shirley Paton's Adventure

By A. W. PEACH.

(Copyright, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Shirley Paton, waiting for the local train that would carry her to her suburban home, found two persons to interest her among the hundreds in the great station. One was a tall, clean-cut young man whose grave eyes stole a glance in her direction now and then—a glance of approval so impersonal that Shirley could accept it.

The other was a tired little mother at her left who seemed to be on the verge of fainting. In her lap she held a small, rosy morsel that was gurgling and cooing, oblivious to her mother's distress.

Suddenly the little mother turned and Shirley found herself questioned. "Will you hold my baby until I see about my train?"

Shirley's first thought was to refuse. Then she scolded herself; no mother would ever leave such a winsome little witch of a babe. Shirley held out her arms.

She was so interested in her new charge that she did not think of her young man. When she did glance up a blush came softly to her cheeks; for if eyes were ever saying anything his were saying: "You are very attractive to me as you hold that youngster so maternally and tenderly."

"I suppose I do look a bit maternal, and I do love babies, but I don't want to advertise it," she thought to herself.

Busy with the happy mite, she did not know the passage of time until it dawned upon her that soon her train would be leaving. She looked about anxiously for the mother, but the tired little figure did not appear.

Shirley's heart thumped. Had she been fooled after all? Was she here with a strange baby? What could she do? She glanced about in her distraction, and her eyes met the grave, fine eyes of the man opposite. She saw that he understood, and with a bit of quaver inside she saw him rise and come toward her.

"Pardon me, but I will see if I can find the mother," he said, smiling encouragingly.

"Bless his yellow head," Shirley said to herself, and then thanked him aloud.

But when he came back after making a trip through the station, she saw he was worried, too. He explained that he could find no trace of the mother.

They stared at each other, the same thought in each mind; what was to be done?

The crimson flooded through his tanned cheeks as he said haltingly: "If you give the youngster to me, I'll take him to the police station—though I hate like thunder to be seen carrying a baby round here where some of my friends may see me!"

She laughed at the sudden boyish exclamation. "I understand," she said. "Let's see." She thought a moment and a quick decision formed in her mind. She could not bear the thought of the baby's going to a police station, and then to some foundling home—such a dainty, fragrant, happy bit of humanity! She would leave word in the station and take the baby home. She smiled as she thought of the dumb astonishment of her family. But how could she ever get the baby home and also all her shopping booty?

She glanced at him. He was gazing with anxious eyes down the long lobby. She made up her mind—that man's frank face was the face to be trusted.

"I am going to take the baby home, if you will help me to the train," she suggested. "And we must hurry, too."

He caught up her bundles quickly and they trailed away to the gate, she in the lead, the baby snug in her arms; he, tall and serene, following her. Eyes turned to glance at them. She blushed, but he seemed imperious.

He saw to it that she was seated and then hesitated. "You will never be able to get off with your—er—impedimenta. May I go with you? I should like to see this adventure through."

She hesitated in turn, then nodded, thinking to herself, "I really want to see a little more of him."

The ride was not eventful in some ways; but she found herself, as they talked of the situation, turning her eyes from the broad shoulders to the gray, protecting, honoring eyes quite a distance above hers. It was an adventure surely, but worth it, just to know him for a short while.

When the station came he aided her to the platform, and again they came to a halt.

"You will really have to help me to the house, and then I'll excuse you—that is, if you—er—care to?" she questioned.

He was already gathering up her bundles. "I am in this with you; but—er—your people. Perhaps I had better introduce myself—Sherman Meldon."

"Agreed," she said, and gave him her name.

They walked to the broad street where she lived, and stopped before a large house, set back among the trees. She hesitated a bit, but it was no use; she must have his aid clear to the door. So they went on.

The maid at the door stared dumbly and let them in. Then a heavy step sounded and a voice began: "Shirley, why didn't you telephone for the car?"

Mr. Paton stepped into the hall, his paper in his hand. He saw them. "Great Scott!" he exclaimed, and the paper dropped.

"Pater, I had to bring the baby home," Shirley cried, and she explained rapidly as she laid the baby down.

As she introduced Meldon and saw that her father knew him by reputation, the tension lifted. "We must get busy and see if we can locate the mother," said Mr. Paton, "and Meldon, you better stay with us and have a bite."

Shirley looked around to find Meldon's eyes upon her in quiet question—a greater question than if she wanted him to stay—a question that told her plainly: "I am learning to love you. If I stay, it means that one of these days I shall love you. Do you want me to linger?"

A little thrill going over her as she made her decision, she smiled: "Yes, you have earned a reward—a good dinner, at least."

Her father, who had stepped out, came in. "You kids did not show much detective ability. I just telephoned to police headquarters and they said the mother was taken from the big station unconscious to the general hospital, and she's wild for the baby now. So you'll have to turn around and take him—it—her—back!"

NEW EPOCH IN RECLAMATION

Tract of Desert Land in Arizona Set Aside to Conserve Types of Desert Vegetation.

Few of us know that many expensive and priceless irrigation projects have been and are being carried on by the United States government. We are aware that the desert will nearly always and everywhere "blossom as the rose" if you can get water into it. But perhaps the most extraordinary reversal of this commendable alchemy has recently gone on the records from Arizona. In continued pursuance of the policy of setting aside large unsettled areas to be future outdoor playgrounds, the Department of the Interior has established "The Panago Saguaro National Monument." It is a tract of simonpure desert land, just east of Phoenix along the famous Apache trail; and it was created "primarily to conserve types of desert vegetation in a region that is rapidly changing in appearance through increased cultivation of the soil."

In other words, reclamation is proceeding at so rapid a pace that soon in the locality the precious giant cactus, sagebrush, rattlesnake, yucca, and gila lizards, shall have passed like the bison. The monument represents a "cross section of the state," a fauna and flora representative of the whole commonwealth, and so is to be preserved to the ages. Truly, a real tribute to nature! Here is a reclamation of the desert in a new sense: Reclamation from the selfish activities of those who would turn its sand to soil and its sage to celery. Surely this marks an epoch in the passing of the great West!—Christian Science Monitor.

More Than One Way.
 There is an old farmer in one of our suburbs who is noted for saying quaint and unexpected things. One day last fall he delivered a couple of dressed birds to a customer, who remarked: "I should think, Mr. Brown, you'd simply hate to chop off the heads of those innocent chickens."

"You're right, ma'am," he said, "and so I never do it. I manage to get around it."

"Get around it, how?" the housewife asked with eager interest.

"Well, you see, ma'am," replied the farmer, "what I does is chop the chickens off the heads."—Boston Transcript.

Embarrassing Moment.
 I was expecting some freight and called the depot to see if it had arrived. We lived on a country line and of course every receiver was down. While I was waiting for them to answer I was thinking what I would say. I had intended to say, "Is this the depot?" and "Has anything arrived for Mrs. K—?"

Instead, I got excited and said, "Hello, is the depot there?"

"No!" thundered the man at the other end of the line, "It just went out on the south-bound train."

A number of points of view were presented, the prevailing one being, get back the traffic.

Robert C. Miller warned against misleading information about conditions.

J. Herman Kinsley, chief of bureau of municipalities, urged the planting of trees along highway.

A number, urged publicity of the actual good condition of the great highway.

George C. Crawford, chief engineer of the York-Adams district, urged publicity of the feeders of the highway. The road to Harrisburg would be open in eight weeks.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor John M. Reynolds urged extensive publicity along route, accommodations for tourists and historical significance of towns.

The best highway in the country is the fact now to be emphasized and the effort to get back the traffic belonging to it.

Town Clock.

The County Commissioners are having an expert locate the trouble of the town clock. It is thought the settling of building, repaired at western end about a year ago, has made trouble for the clock. It is hoped that repairs will be successful and that the old clock will be calling out the time soon, as it has been doing for more than a half century.

Lutherans at Pen-Mar July 28.

The thirty-fifth annual Lutheran reunion will be held at Pen-Mar on Thursday, July 28. The program for the day includes addresses by Dr. J. A. Singmaster, D.D., "Luther at Worms—the Teacher of Universal Christianity"; Rev. George W. Neely, D.D., "What I Saw in Tokio, Japan"; Harry Hodges, "Arise, Young Lutherans! in Unity and Harmony, Improve Your Opportunity to Bring in the Kingdom."

A large chorus is being trained for the occasion.

The four year old daughter of a Mr. Stabber, farmer, of Hamilton township, was cut across the nose by being struck by the frame work of the automobile in which she was riding, when it collided with another car at a cross roads about one mile southeast of Abbotstown, Saturday night. The car which collided with Mr. Stabber's machine was driven by Walter Stine, who was taking members of the East Berlin Band to a festival. Neither driver was able to see the other car owing to the fact that a dwelling located in the corner obstructs the view. Nobody else was hurt, but both cars were badly damaged.

LAST MONTH, on a bet.
WITH THE boys up home.
I SPENT a night.
ALONE IN the old.
HAUNTED HOUSE.
AND WHEN I heard.
MOANS AND groans.
I SAID "The wind."
AND TRIED to sleep.
I HEARD rappings.
AND SAID "Rats."
AND ROLLED over.
THEN I heard steps.
AND IN the light.
OF A dying moon.
A WHITE spook rose.
I WASN'T scared—much.
BUT DIDN'T feel like.
STARTING ANYTHING
BUT THEN I caught.
JUST A faint whiff.

OF A familiar.
AND DELICIOUS smell.
WHICH TIPPED me off.
SO I gave the ghost.
THE HORSE laugh.
AND SAID "Ed.
YOU FAT guys.
MAKE BUM ghosts.
BUT BEFORE you fade.
LEAVE WITH me one.
OF YOUR cigarettes.
THEY SATISFY."

THAT spicy, delicious aroma of fine tobaccos, both Turkish and Domestic, makes you almost hungry for the "satisfy-smoke."
And there isn't a ghost of a chance you'll ever find its equal anywhere—for the Chesterfield blend is an exclusive blend. It

DON'T RISK NEGLECT.

Don't neglect a constant backache, sharp, darting pains or urinary disorders. The danger of dropsy or Bright's disease is too serious to ignore. Use Doan's Kidney Pills as have your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor. A Gettysburg case.

Mrs. Ella Little, 20 Breckenridge St., says: "There are no words of praise good enough for Doan's Kidney Pills. It was only about a year ago that my kidneys were in a very bad condition. I had a stiffness through my limbs, but it was backache that gave me the most trouble. Sharp pains started through my back very often when I would be working around during the day. I suffered severely when I did any stooping work and no one knows what a time of it I had. Dizziness annoyed me so I thought more than once that I would fall over with it. I was very much run down and my nerves gave out altogether. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I lost no time in getting some at the People's Drug Store. I was rid of the backache and dizzy spells and other signs of kidney complaint. My back and kidneys were put in proper condition, too." 60c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

GUN TO SHOOT FIVE TON SHELLS 300 MILES

The German's "Bertha" gun which dropped shells on Paris at a distance of seventy miles, fades into insignificance before the new American gun which will shoot gas bombs or shells weighing five tons a distance of 300 miles. Such a gun has not been built as yet, but in a miniature demonstration before noted American inventors in the tower of the great Woolworth Building at New York the other day this little gun shot steel bullets through a three-quarter inch steel plate, as shown in the picture. Experts declare the big gun practical. It is smokeless and almost noiseless—the only sound coming with the impact of the bullet against the steel. The same principle is to be followed in riveting machines for ship construction.
